Description

This dataset contains information from the second survey of the collection of Swedish opinion surveys. Forty percent of the questions are replications of questions asked in Swedish Opinion 1979 (SSD 0088). New questions dealt with: the influence on the freedom of individuals by laws and other exercise of authorities; willingness to work more if the marginal income tax was lowered; alcohol and drugs; threats against the respondent's feeling of security; values in life; more security and/or freedom with another government; influence of computers and robots on the respondent's working conditions; things the respondent can do better than other people and something the respondent did exceptionally well at some occasion; improvements wished in one's own qualities and abilities; political parties getting more or fewer votes in next general election; qualities of the political parties; opinion on how the party preferred should act toward the other political parties; mining and export of uranium; decentralization; measures to be taken to reduce taxes; media covering of drug abuse; parental influence on children; political opinions in various mass media. The respondents had to give their preference when choosing between pairs of values in life and tell about persons admired. Other questions dealt with the respondents opinion on: cohabiting without being married; men and women sharing household duties equally; the importance of how a person ought to behave; bank loans; interest in a number of activities; attitude toward Konsum; contacts with child's school or daycare centre; best investment of money; credit card.
